REACHING THOSE WHO KNOW NOTHING ABOUT GOD

All of our giving to the Lord's work, whether time or money, should be an act of faith – believing that God will use what we offer to build His Kingdom here on earth and for eternity.

Your gifts to Call #149, in particular, can serve as an example of this kind of faith. Funds from part of that Call are helping to implement NCEM's Worldview Action Plan. The results may not be visible right now, but we're prayerfully trusting God for future spiritual fruit.

Minute-Man gifts to our Action Plan made it possible for one of our missionaries, Myrna Patenaude, to traveling around the globe realized that many of those he met knew nothing about the God of the Bible.

We believe that Myrna's First Nations perspective, her training in worldview approach, and her desire to reach her own people for Christ will make her an effective communicator as she writes English language curriculum for Canada's First Peoples.

Much Gospel literature is produced for people with a "Christian" worldview (i.e., belief in one God). It may still be useful for some on our fields, but Myrna's study of animistic worldviews and the implications will benefit her greatly in producing evangelistic resources for people with no Bible background and with false views of life and reality.

Thank you again for your Minute-Man gifts ... your acts of faith as you give to the Lord's future work in the lives of First Peoples! ●

That training will be very helpful this fall as Myrna begins a new assignment in partnership with GoodSeed, a missions-mind publisher with a Canadian base in Olds, Alberta.

CHALLENGING YOUNG ADULTS with the GREAT COMMISSION

David & Joanna Bouck's ministry is also mentioned on the "Call" side of this letter. It's because we believe college age adults (and everyone, really) should be challenged with Christ's Great Commission ... to move out to unreached areas making disciples.

As you may have already read, your gifts to Call #150 are helping the Boucks carry on this important task, one with eternal consequences.

David & Joanna are new to this aspect of missions work, but they believe that their years spent on the mission field in Nunavik (Arctic Quebec) have been great preparation.

In fact, they say they're still adjusting to life "in the south"!

"We had to get used to cell phones, garbage recycling, sale shopping, and a small apartment," they say. "We had lived in isolated villages of about 1,000 people with two stores – now we live in a city of 128,000 with many stores and opportunities.

"Our ministry had involved leading Bible studies and fellowship meetings – now we attend these kinds of things, of course, but in a different role. Now our ministry is to connect with people to share about opportunities with NCEM." ●

Dear Minute-Man friends ...

In September NCEM representatives start traveling to connect with college students, and carry on through the year. We mentioned the Boucks last time, and part of Call #150 will help cover theirs and other representatives' costs for this avenue of recruiting new missionaries. Our field directors also travel regularly, visiting the missionaries for which they are responsible. Many miles are covered, some by air, and most by road. These visits are for encouragement, adjusting ministry focus, and strategizing together for ministry on each field. Gifts to our last Call also help make possible this important part of NCEM's outreach.

To date, $54,162.44 has come in for Minute-Man Call #150. Thank you very much for your support of these NCEM ministries!

Our new Minute-Man Call (#151) is designated for the following:

- BIBLE CAMPS can play an important role in seeing Indigenous churches planted and strengthened. Young people and their families are introduced to the Gospel, and First Nations teens are discipled and given opportunity to grow in their faith while serving at camp.

Here are current camp projects in need of funding: ● Arrowhead Native Bible Center (New Brunswick) struggles each summer to find life guards for its Bible Camp. To enable water activities to carry on, construction of a "Splash Pad" is planned. Also, Arrowhead needs to rebuild worn-out playground equipment ... ● Higher Challenge Wilderness Adventures needs additional tents, sleeping bags, plus canoe repair ... ● Big River Bible Camp is in need of kitchen equipment for its new building – including appliances, range hood and fire suppression ... ● Pine Ridge Bible Camp needs a Quad or similar small off-road vehicle, and also needs to upgrade its fire fighting equipment ... ● Kwayakotage (our Bible camp based in Quebec) and our Eastern/Northeastern-Field share a truck in need of mechanical & body repair.

- Our AVIATION DEPT. needs to replace the cylinders on our Cessna 185 float plane engine, and ...
- Our WESTERN-FIELD appreciates financial assistance for a pastoral training session coming up.

Building together for the future,

Albert B. Heal
General Director NCEM
